til-utils Documentation

Release latest

May 23, 2021

CONTENTS

til-utils (working title) is a Github Application that aims to transform any Github repository into a static blog. It's a personal project that after talking with some friends I decided to make it more generic and approachable for people who is not me. At the moment you'll need a technical skill to use it (git, JS), but the overall goal is to make everything work directly from Github web UI.

Contents

CONFIG.JSON

Default config of blog, it details editing and production branches, the blob format that your post files must have (postsFormat) and where the dates file JSON is present in that repo (datesFile).